HARROLD'S PANSY GARDENS & GREENHOUSES

GRANTS PASS, OREGON. P. O. BOX 29

OUR FORTY - THIRD YEAR

As for the past three years we continue this series of folders in place of the former catalogues which used a great deal more paper. They afford you the information essential to the purchase and use of our well known specialties. Editions will be spread throughout the year so as to offer most material as it is available and seasonable. However, as many items are available and seasonable throughout the year or for several months, we hope that you will file each edition as it arrives and refer to them often. By so doing you will help us to serve you better with a minimum of material and labor used. We will gladly replace any issue which may become lost of course if we are still able to do so.

We hope to maintain prices at the lowest possible level and as stable as we can. In re-issuing a listing of a group of stock, prices current at the time we go to press will of course be given and these prices will always apply after the date of that issue. In ALL cases quotations are made subject to change in market price, taxes or government regulation and prior sale without notice. This is simply normal trade practice that is dictated by the current unsettled conditions. We'll do our best to serve you well and do appreciate your co-operation and patronage.

The Pansy Situation

This MUST be appraised as TIGHT at this time. Large wholesale plantings have been generally reduced this year because of scarcity of labor in many sections where wholesale growers have been operating. It is safe to say that at this time the supply of plants in the hands of these growers is the smallest in the history of the industry. We are practically sold out as you will see farther along in this list. As for the retailer who grows his own, there is certainly no more than normal supplies for his own trade in his hands and it is doubtful if many of these growers are going to release much of their stock to fellow tradesmen in view of the prospects of heavy demand from the public.

The overall picture is that there will not be enough Pansies to meet the demand by any means. The demand for Pansies has been increasing for the past several seasons along with general demand for all gardening materials.

Another factor which has reduced the supply was that last August and September when the most of the commercial plantings were made, weather conditions were far from favorable in much of the U.S. and the supply of seeds was decidedly short because of generally late harvests and a shortage of labor among the seed growers. All of this has resulted in a substantial reduction in supply.

THERE IS STILL TIME TO REMEDY THIS

It is still possible to plant seeds of Pansies and handling them the same as the tender annuals you can make nice plants for April and May sales. They will require no more care than any of the easily grown annuals and in many cases a lot less heat; for they may be shifted into cold frames or outdoor beds as soon as real heavy freezing is past. The plants won't be as heavy as the fall sown stock usually is but can be made to show several large blooms in time for spring sale if sown early. We recommend planting before February 20th, but they can be bloomed by May 20th. if planted before March 10th.

The price of blooming stock last season reached $20.00 per 1,000 and higher and we predict that this season may easily see $30.00 stock which is not too high for good plants that now easily bring $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen. If you prepare for this NOW you can supply this demand and you'll find this stock just as profitable as any of the annuals you usually grow. We can offer seeds for immediate planting in the very finest assortment of the Giant Flowered varieties and strains. These are the Harrold's Pedigreed Strain Pansies for which our firm has been famous for more than a quarter century. They are Harrold Originations. SEE NEXT PAGE FOR CULTURAL SUGGESTIONS

Spring Culture of Pansies

While Pansies in the main are usually planted in July, August and September; transplanted outdoors in the fall and wintered either in open beds under mulch, or in coldframes for sale the following spring, it is possible and practical to plant them during January and February in the greenhouse and obtain good salable stock for April and May. In this case they are handled very much the same as the popular annuals with the exception that they may be moved out into cold-frames or outdoor beds much earlier than most stock without danger of loss.

Seeds should be sown in flats filled with three-fourths good garden loam and a fourth of well rotted cow manure or rich compost. Sandy loam is preferable or soil from which the green part of a heavy sod has been skimmed. It is desirable to have a good fiber or humus content to this soil and it will handle better if worked through a four to the inch mesh screen. Plant the seeds broadcast on a lightly tamped surface and cover lightly with granulated peat moss or the same soil as used in the flat. Again tamp lightly, Cover only about $\frac{1}{10}$ inch deep or just enough to hide the seeds. Keep in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night until germination takes place. Until germination occurs avoid any dryness of the seed bed. Afterwards, however, supply just enough moisture to keep the plants from suffering. Over watering at this stage will cause trouble from damping off. If this should bother reduce moisture still farther and treat the affected area liberally with Flowers of Sulphur. Plants should be transplanted from the seedling flat when they have 6 to 8 leaves.

Grow Pansies continually on the cool side and allow good ventilation on bright days. Do not plant more than 60 plants to the standard florist flat which should be 3 inches or more deep. Dirt bands 2x2 inches may be used for transplanting with excellent results. As soon as severe freezing is past these plants may be shifted to unheated frames with glass sash or in milder localities into open beds. If glass sash is used over the plants use them only in freezing weather or at night. Give the plants all the open sunlight possible. They will make their most rapid growth at this stage when nights are cool and days warm and sunny. Pansies may easily be moved out of the greenhouse before you require the space for the spreading of other annual stock and for that reason they are very economical to grow in point of equipment time and operation. Except for the months of January and February, heat will hardly be required unless it is in the most northerly locations and at no time will heat be a critical requirement so long as it is above 38 degrees after germination takes place.

Because of the scarcity of these plants this year and the demand which is sure to be heavy, we can not stress too greatly the advisability of making a spring sowing of them. Prices which can be obtained on good stock that you can still grow should easily make them one of your most profitable items.

PANSY PLANTS

We had reported these all sold, which they virtually are when our stock gets below 100,000. We stopped selling over a month ago so as to be sure of having stock to fill orders then on hand and in most cases, except for an item or two, we will be able to do this. There is still about 65,000 September sown seedlings of 6 to 8 leaf size which we can still offer. As they are composed of varying quantities of several of our best mixtures and separate colors we offer them subject to stock available on receipt of order. If you want separate colors specify preference and we'll fill with them if still available. If not a general mixture will be sent. All stock remaining is of our best strains.

PRICES subject to prior sale are $1.50 per 100; $10.00 per 1,000. Terms: strictly cash with order. Less than 250 takes the 100 rate.

PERENNIAL PLANTS One Year Old Field Grown

These plants are all one year old field grown in sandy loam soil and will be ideal for planting now or in the spring. As with most growers our stock is modest. Far less than the quantities we usually grew before the war and for this reason we suggest early ordering of any item that interests you.

After 7 years breeding work with Primula polyantha and veris and their hybrids, we believe this to be a group of plants which the Florist and Nurseryman will find most valuable. The new strains thrive over a wider range of cultural conditions and are hardy anywhere in the U. S. Modern strains are less exacting as to culture although they do best in a situation which has always proven favorable. An eastern exposure protected from noon and afternoon sun and drying winds; under light tree shade is ideal. Coolness, some shade, ample moisture, good drainage and medium light woodland type of soil gives best results although the plants have a good tolerance. They are ideal rockgarden subjects and once established should not be disturbed over a period of 3 or 4 years. They are as hardy as Pansies and will winter under about the same conditions.

Culture is Simple

Seeds may be sown at almost any time of the year that they can be procured. They may be planted from June to Oct. out of doors or in coldframes; or in flats indoors from October to late April or May. New crop seeds usually are ready in July or August.

The seedling soil should be light and seeds covered but lightly. A liberal use, about $\frac{1}{4}$ th. well rotted cow manure is good. We plant by the Purdue method on top of $\frac{1}{4}$ inch of sphagnum moss that has been rubbed through a $\frac{1}{4}$ inch screen and firmed over top of flat with a block. After firming moss should be about $\frac{1}{8}$ th inch thick. Plant on top of moss but do not cover. A pane of glass should be kept over flat until germination is complete. This method avoids damping off and gives maximum germination. Avoid excessive moisture but see that the moss is kept damp at all times. If covering the seeds with soil or other media do not apply more than $\frac{1}{8}$ th inch. Keep bed shaded until germination is complete.

As the seedlings become large enough, about 4 to 6 leaves, prick off into flats and keep in a cool, moist and partly shaded situation. As they are large enough shift from flats to permanent bed or individual pots. If into pots, plunge to the rim in soil to maintain low soil temperature and even moisture. Again protect from severe sun until established. When setting into their final bed add humus, leafmold and/or well rotted cow manure to the soil as the established plant likes a deep, moist, rich loamy soil that is well drained. We do not advise the use of commercial chemical fertilizers but cow manure can be used liberally.

Late Winter and Spring sown plants may be set into their permanent bed in Sept., Oct. or later depending on locality and climate. Sowings planted in Summer and Fall are best set into outdoor beds early the following Spring. Plants may also be propagated by dividing old plants in the Fall. These divisions will bloom the following Spring but seedling plants will be a year old when they bloom.

Hardy Primrose Plants & Seeds HARROLD'S Pedigreed GIANTS

This is a new strain of Polyantha veris hybrids on which we have worked for more than six years. The plants are compact and of robust growth while the flowers are born well above the foliage on fine long stems. Flowers are large, often as big as a silver dollar in clusters from 4 to 8 inches across. Colors are outstandingly brilliant and varied — including yellows, reds, and purples of real brilliance as well as pinks, blues and bronzes that are rare.

Southern Oregon Grown GLADIOLUS BULBS

Offered for Rotation Shipment and Subject to Prior Sale.

Orders will be booked and shipped in rotation of arrival only so long as stocks in our warehouses last. When these are sold there will be no more until after 1945 harvest. Early ordering is advised.

Gladiolus bulbs from the Rogue River Valley here in Southern Oregon have made a most favorable record during the past 20 years and the stock we offer here is the cream of the crop. Varieties are carefully selected and the bulb quality is unsurpassed. As always they are carefully grown and cured and every blub has been fumigated under the supervision of the Oregon State Department of Agriculture by the most approved fumigant for thrips. These bulbs are clean when sent out.
